It is part of a concerted movement by the Congregational missionary societies, both home and foreign, known as "The Joint Missionary Campaign for Our Country and the World," The campaign opened at St. Johnsbury, Vt., Tuesday, Jan. 26, and is now being carried on throughout the entire country by a large force of able speakers representing the several societies.

ing the several societies.

The missionary work of the Congregational churches is carried on through the agency of several specialized organizations. The American board specializes upon foreign missions entirely outside the territory of the United States. The Home Missionary society specializes upon the lineof pastoral and evangells. tie work in organized Congregationa churches throughout the United States The specialty of the American Missionary association is work by church and chool for the backward peoples in thi school for the backward peoples in this country belonging to the eight races. The specialty of the Church Building society, is to help struggling churches, by loan or grant, to reach self-support through housing their congregations and ministers. The Education society has for its special mission to sustain schools of the higher grades in regions not otherwise provided with them, and assist promising students for the ministry who ceuld not otherwise get the necessary training. The Sunday School and Publishing society finds its special missionary service establishing and maintaining Sunday schools where as yet there is no church organization. The Apportionment Plan. With such division of labor in the practical working of Congregational missions there has been a growing con clousness of its oneness and mutmissionary agencies can best do It work in full co-operation with the oth ers. Accordingly, with much stud and pains, what is known as the ap portionment plan has been framed and worked out. This takes the form of a united recommendation to the churches and individuals that they distributions among these seven Congregational socioties on the scale of certain definite percent. ages adjusted to the proportional ur-gency of the work. A number of churches have already adopted the recommendation and put it in operati But with the larger number of church the apportionment plan still halts. In order to make it generally practicable it seems necessary that all of the mis-donary societies should be free from debt.

Debts to Be Provided For. Three of them, the American board he Home Missionary socciety, and the American Missionary association, eac closed its last fiscal year under a considerable burden of debt. The total of this indebtedness is $273,094.84. To provide for this these societies must take measures either separately or together. They decided to make of it one strong. concerted measure, such as would en-able the other four societies to partici-pate with them and together help or the apportionment plan.

The Financial Objective. Accordingly, the figure set for the financial goal of this joint missionary campaign is $500,000, all subscriptions conditioned on the round sum of $300.000 being secured. One of this sum will first be paid the $273,094.84 debu of the American board, the Congrega-tional Home Missionary society and th American Missionary association. ACT AS SPUR TO MAN'S PRIDE. Love and Belief Are Powerful Agents for Reformation.

Love and belief in a man can never hurt him. It will always act as a spur to his pride, which is invariably close to a man's love, whilst it has little or nothing to do with a woman's. Even when the schoolboy falls in love with the little girl in pinafores, his first instinct is to acquit himself -to knock out some other boy, or intimidate a foe.

This instinct remains with men until they die, just as girls from the cradle or inspired by love seek beauty to appear lovely in the eyes of their
